<Oslo>

Although it is one of the world's largest capital cities in area, Oslo has only 480,000 inhabitants. Nevertheless, in recent years the city has taken off: shops are open later, cafés and restaurants are crowded at all hours, and theaters play to full houses every night of the week.

Even without nightlife, Oslo has a lot to offer--parks, water, trees, hiking and skiing trails, and above all, spectacular views. Starting at the docks opposite City Hall, right at the edge of the Oslo Fjord, the city sprawls up the sides of the mountains that surround it, providing panoramic vistas from almost any vantage point.

<Helsinki>

"Visiting Helsinki" is a series of articles about the Finnish capital, descriptions of places, ambiences, moods and opportunities. The service will help you plan a physical trip to this northern city, but it also lets you enjoy a virtual visit courtesy of the Net.

We have tried to select the kind of information that different groups of visitors are likely to need and provide hints and tips that will make their visit rewarding and memorable.

We have separate packages of information for families with children and young visitors. Or perhaps you are planning to visit us driving your own car? In that case, we have thought of you. The same goes for people whose main interest in Helsinki is shopping, as well as for business travellers and congress delegates? Or read the article General information about the city.
